We Survived the Summer

It has been quite a year for all of us here in the Land of Enchantment. It started with one of the coldest winters in recent memory. Temperatures dipped well below zero degrees. Slipping and sliding was a great adventure that most of us would rather not do again.

This gave way to a very dry springtime that is just now getting quenched by the rains. Fires began all around the state with the largest in recorded history around the Los Alamos area. We were spared the direct impact of the flames here in Albuquerque but we did get the smoke for several weeks (months).

Now these things are gone and we have the rains again. Fall is near and the promise of cooler weather is once again in the air.

The state fair will soon be going on. The balloon fiesta and a new crop of chili are all wonderful things that will be popping up.

Through all season, conditions and climates that we in Albuquerque continue to claim as its own, it is nice to know there is a safe place to store excess items and know they will always be safe.

So this year as you are pulling those decorations out of the closet and contemplating the new holiday season, consider taking those seasonal items out and storing them in your own self storage unit.

Armored Mini Storage will always be there for you and we wish you a Happy Holiday season as the year comes to a close.

Bring on the Winter!

There is a slight chill in the air in the morning now. A sure sign that winter is just around the corner.

The thought of snow flying is a nice thought during those hot days of summer., But when it does arrive it's good to take some precautions to make sure you are prepared:

- 1) Disconnect the garden hose and drain the water out of it to keep from freezing.
- 2) Drain and cover the cooler
- 3) Have the antifreeze checked in your car by a technician.

- 4) Have the furnace checked before it is lit.

Keeping your home safe with these simple tips will make the winter's start a little easier.
